Cremona in America

Andrea Rosin was first introduced in 2002 as Tartini Rosin. Tartini Rosin was quickly recognized as distinct among rosins by world renowned string players and string lovers.

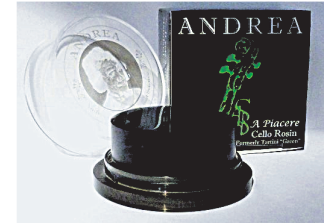

In September 2005, Andrea Bang introduced an upgraded version called “Andrea”, which was designed to provide even more sensitive and sophisticated sound enhancement than “Tartini.”

Cremona in America under the direction of Peter Bahng, Andrea's son, reintroduced Andrea rosin with improved performance and a new look. Andrea Rosin is now available for violin, viola and cello in three types – A Piacere, Solo and Orchestra.

Each block of rosin is individually handmade in the USA from the finest quality ingredients.

ANDREA A Piacere

'A Piacere' Rosin was previously known as Tartini Green. Relaunched in March 2011 as 'A Piacere', it provides effortless bow control with even sound production. This rosin will get the most out of your instrument, and add that extra something.

Available in standard and half size blocks.

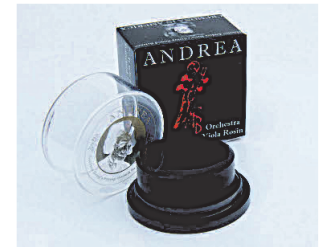

Available in standard and half size blocks.

ANDREA Solo

Solo Rosin: Gives a pure, clean and projecting sound that soloists love. It allows you to achieve a wonderful tone with almost no effort. It has the widest dynamic range and it is ideal for solo playing, especially in large halls.

ANDREA Orchestra

Orchestra Rosin: Gives a smoother sound that blends well in an orchestra or chamber group.

Available in standard size blocks.
